Central's application for admission to the Inter-scholastic Basketball League is in the hands of Dr. William B. Hudson, president of the circuit, and will be acted upon at the next league session, scheduled for next Monday night at the Army and Navy Preparatory School. President Lamson, of the Central High School Athletic Association, signed the application asking for admission.

Since Mark DeGrange has been appointed coach of the Central quint and the Epiphany gym has been obtained for work Central has decided to put basketball on the curriculum of sports along with football, baseball, and track. Tennis was added as well as basketball so that letters will now be given to athletes who have taken part in regulation basketball league contests and tennis matches.

The decision to apply for a berth in the Inter-scholastic circuit was reached recently. Central followers are sure they will be able to represent in the indoor sport and that the basketball team will take rank with the other excellent teams wearing the blue.

There is every indication that Central will be admitted to the circuit, as those in charge have expected the Central team to apply since the first of the school year. When the new Central building is opened the boys will find one of the best gyms in the city to work in, and the decision to play this year will probably prove a wise one, as Central is wishing to get a good start in the game taken up for the first time this season.

Few people know that Central and Tech football teams were once ordered out of the high school football series, and that Business, Western, and Eastern fought out the title without the two larger schools. Tech was in the days when Central and Tech were housed in the same school and pooled interests.

The three other schools decided that a Tech-Central combination was not to be desired as opposition in football and refused to play the joint team. It was then that the schools organized different teams and the first engagement found a battle royal at American League Park. "Magpie" Macfarlane, who will referee today's contest will remember that opening battle, as he was in it, as were players like Tullie, Ballester, Senior, Sheppard and Beall. Since that contest, which started Tech-Central rivalry, the annual games between the schools have been features.

Today at Georgetown field the schools will fight it out again. Central has twice won the Princeton Cup, and Tech also has two legs on the trophy. Today's game is in the nature of a public contest. The game will attract the largest crowd of the series and should prove a fine contest from whistle to whistle.

The hope of the Tech team for a permanent win of the Princeton Cup is a victory over Central today. The hope that Western dowers Business and looks to Central. This state of affairs would give Tech three wins and no losses. Business two wins and one loss, and Central two wins and two losses, provided Eastern is defeated in the final battle Tech plays.

All sorts of complications could arise should Central win today and Western win from both Business and Central. The Westerners believe they have a good chance to win their remaining games, in which instance they will come out on the top of the heap.

Gonzaga is meeting the Alexandria High School today at Alexandria today. The contest is in preparation for the Saturday battle with the Georgetown Prep for the Jesuit title of the city and for the Prep school championship. Gonzaga is desirous of battling the Army-Navy Prep team and St. Albans for the scholastic title before the season is through.

Navy Feels Sure That Army Can Be Defeated

Martin Continues to Look Good to Middies by His All-Around Progress—Captain Miles in Poor Condition and May Take Two Weeks' Rest.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 9.—As the period which precedes the great game against the eleven of the Military Academy grows short, all the incidents which are an old tale in Annapolis just before the big service contest are in evidence. Preparations are being made for the trip to New York on the 25th, there are discussions as to whether tickets to the game will be secured readily, the midshipmen are practicing their songs, and yells—new and old—and a general air of intense expectancy pervades the Academy and Annapolis. Notwithstanding the poor showing of the team in its local games, there is no dependency, and the friends of the team think that there is a fair chance for the Navy team to win.

It is pointed out that the Army team seems to be going back at the present time, while the Navy team has certainly improved in some measure. Word has reached here that no less an authority than Graduate Manager Cook of the Georgetown eleven, the only team which played both service eleven, has stated that the Navy has a very marked improvement in its play, and that Georgetown won from the Navy and was defeated by the Army. He has stated that the soldiers have not a strong team by any means, and have the defeat of his team to the rough treatment which it received, and the failure of the officials to call fouls when they should. Oliphant, he said, was the only man to fear as a ground gainer.

The Navy team, therefore, bases its hopes on the belief that West Point is not so strong as usual, as well as upon its confidence in a considerable improvement in the next few weeks. Whether he will get his place at quarterback is a problem, though it is generally thought that he will handle the team well and get in some corking runs in the open, but he is not rugged enough to help the runner as he should or to be of great use on the defense. Craig has had more experience, and is more rugged physically, and these two, with Luth, are the possibilities in case Miles does not fill the place. Other good men in the backfield bunch are Vail, Mullens, Dashiell, Von Heimburg, and Johnson.

Among the heavies in the line, the best work is being done by Ward at left tackle and Goodwin at center. Others who show possibilities are Kercher, H. S. Jones, Holtzman, Smith, Gilman, and Clark. The Navy has seldom had a better set of men physically for this department of the game. Ends are an acknowledged weak point. "Genworthy" is doing only fairly well at left end, and Edgett is not entirely at home on the other flank. His training has been a back and his punting and passing are very useful to the team, as he drops back for this kind of work. He has also been more successful in catching passes than any other Navy player. He has yet to learn a good deal about the defensive work of his position.

TAKE PRECAUTION TO PREVENT "SCALPING"

Army-Navy Football Tickets Will Not Be Mailed to Users Until November 12.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Unlooked-for delay, due to precautions being taken to keep tickets out of the hands of speculators, is holding up the distribution of the Army's share of the tickets for the Army-Navy football game to be played at the Polo Grounds in New York on November 27. It was announced here tonight, Lieut. Charles B. Meyer, secretary and treasurer of the Army Athletic Council, said today that the tickets will not be put in the mail before November 12.

Each ticket will bear the name of the individual to whom issued, written in indelible ink. Hundreds of letters received after the distribution began will remain unopened until it is completed. The local council has an option on several thousand seats, which will be sold through the New York baseball club. Requests on the Army Athletic Council for orders for such tickets will only be honored when recommended by an army officer or a civilian who is a subscriber to the Athletic Council.

Virginia Is Indifferent To Schemes for Peace

Dr. Lambeth, Football Authority, Known to Be Opposed to Georgetown Football Game—Vanderbilt Fills Well Gap Left by Blue and Gray.

By THOMAS KIRBY.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Nov. 9.—There today a marked indifference here to the informal plans of Georgetown and Virginia alumni to bring about a restoration of the former classic of the football season in Washington.

In the faculty there is somewhat of a division of opinion, some being unalterably opposed to meeting Georgetown, while others see no particular objection to renewing the friendship that at one time meant so much to both universities.

Dr. W. A. Lambeth, head of the Virginia system, is not in favor of any action at this time looking toward peace with Georgetown. While he refuses to be quoted it is known that no later than last week he expressed his opinion to the faculty that he was not in favor of the plan for peace.

Dr. Lambeth is more familiar than any man living on Georgetown-Virginia relations, and, viewing the subject from the standpoint of adviser, he sees nothing that his college has to gain at this time by entering into negotiations that might lead to winning out the enemy that at present exists between West Washington and Charlottesville.

It was thought that one of the most far-reaching appeals of the proposal would be the financial considerations. Still here it is found there is far less enthusiasm than might be expected over this, since the annual balance of the University of Virginia has made long strides in intercollegiate diplomacy, with the result that also has now one of the minor colleges of the country. Vanderbilt has filled the gap that it was made by Georgetown. The latter's absence considerably more satisfactorily than many might believe. On Saturday this game is played at Nashville, where the crowds are nearly three times as large as at Charlottesville.

Reflection on the matter of finances demonstrates that this factor is one not calculated to appeal to the reasons of the strength that many might believe. This is not to be taken as an intimation that Virginia could not find any way to use the profits of a Georgetown game. But the need is not so dire as many might argue.

Among the graduates who annually flock to this place to aid in the coaching there is a feeling against the restoration of the Georgetown game on the ground that it would be overburdening the team with another big date on an already heavy schedule. These alumni assert that it would be too great a task to point a team for Vanderbilt and following a week later in prime condition against Georgetown and a few days later face Carolina, victory in each of these games being necessary to avert disappointment here.

Leaving aside all sentimental reasons and alleged justifications, the foregoing will give general idea to the reasons that Virginia offer as an objection to meeting Georgetown.

On the other hand, there is the strong sort of a propaganda being advanced among Virginia alumni to have the team visit Washington.

While the unexpected is almost as much of a rule as the exception in intercollegiate dealing a Georgetown-Virginia post-season game this fall is almost an impossibility, while the indications of a game a year hence are far from encouraging to those who have the better interests of the two universities at heart.

The talk of an alliance between Virginia and Catholic University is discouraged here. Dr. Lambeth being authority for the statement that all proposals for this will receive scant consideration here.

Les Darcy Lacks Punch To Make Ring Champion

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Although Les Darcy, the Australian sensation, defeated Jimmy Clabby in their recent bout, he did not prove himself to be another Stanley Kitchel. Clabby was still on his feet at the end of the twenty rounds, which indicates that Darcy is not such a remarkable hitter, despite his knock-out of Eddie McGoorty.

That Darcy was able to win the decision proves that he is no false alarm. Clabby is an experienced veteran and the cleverest and best ring general of the middleweights who are not afraid to fight twenty rounds. Australians have a great admiration for this style of boxing, and Darcy must have displayed very good form in order to have gained the verdict.

The match was announced as being for the middleweight championship of the world, and in the eyes of his admiring fellow countrymen at least Darcy is supreme in that division. Americans, of course, will not accept him until he has disposed of Mike Gibbons, Young Ahearn, and others.

Hold Rules to Blame For Michigan Failure

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 9.—Eligibility requirements at the University of Michigan are held responsible for the complete collapse of the 1915 Wolverine football squad.

Eligibility rules at the Michigan institution are said to be enforced perhaps more strictly than at any other big school in the country, and there is widespread sentiment on the campus for changes that will equalize conditions.

Secret Practice Now Ordered by Exendine

Georgetown's Varsity Squad Initiates Workout Behind Closed Gates This Afternoon—O'Connor Expected to Play Regularly At Tackle.

Georgetown's first secret practice of the 1915 season is due today at the Hilltop. The gates will be closed to all but the coaches and the varsity squad. Not even the undergrads will be allowed to watch the team going through its practice. A long scrimmage, in which every regular will take part, is booked for today. Coach Exendine feeling that his players need a lot of grueling work before tackling the strong North Carolina Aggies Saturday afternoon.

Tom Gormley is not expected to be in the game with the Aggies. Since he was suspended following the Army game, Danny O'Connor, the big freshman, has been filling the berth at right tackle so well that, even if Gormley is reinstated, it is doubtful if he will regain his position in the line. O'Connor is improving fast and by the end of the season should be one of the most powerful tackles ever seen at Georgetown.

The battle now is between Jackie Maloney and "Midget" Smith for quarterback. Maloney's ability to punt is keeping him in the line-up while Jack Dempsey is unable to play. If Dempsey is in condition to play Saturday Smith may start against the Aggies.

Georgetown's law school contingent is planning a parade from downtown out to the campus Saturday afternoon. A band will head the line and all alumni are invited to get into line.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 9.—Virginia is aware of the strength of the University of South Carolina football team, and will in no way underestimate the opponent of Saturday in the game to be played at Columbia, S. C. This is the sum and substance of the preparation to be made during the remainder of the week for the Carolina eleven.

Coach Varner will have a long scrimmage drill this afternoon, in which all of the regulars will take part. There were no injuries to the players who came out of the game with Vanderbilt, and the regular game on the schedule yesterday, and another is looked for today.

Carolina plays will be tried out against the squad during the remainder of the week just before the eleven takes its long trip South. It was recalled yesterday that many of the present team have played for last game on Lambert Field. H. H. Coleman, "Buck" Mayer, Jack Brown, Moore, White, and Berkeley are seniors, and the remaining games on the schedule are to be played away from Charlottesville.

The Freshman team goes to Annapolis tomorrow to play the Plebe team. Many of the Virginia youngsters have been showing up well and expect to win the contest.

Easy For Thomson.

The Thomson School eleven easily defeated the Dennis School yesterday in a one-sided game, 74 to 14. The game was featured by the work of Kimmel, Captain Jarnehl and Phillips, the first two making practically all their team's scores.
